CHARGE COOLIDGE FOR INTERFERING

TRIED TO INFLUENCE MEMBER OF TARIFF BOARD

WANTED SUGAR TARIFF REPORT DELAY, CHARGE

Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska,
Charges the President, Senator
Smoot and Others With Attempting to Delay Report on Sugar Tariff.

Washington.—President Coolidge, Senator Smoot, Republican, Utah, and others were charged in the senate by Senator Norris, Republican, Nebraska, with attempting to influence William S. Culbertson, as a member of the tariff commission, to delay the commission's report on the sugar tariff.

Senator Norris declared that the president wanted to hold back the report until after the 1924 election, and had requested the commission to drop the sugar investigation and start a butter inquiry.

When this failed, the Nebraska senator said, charges were brought against Commissioner Culbertson, and former Attorney General Stone submitted a report on the charges adverse to Culbertson to President Coolidge.

"President Coolidge sent for Culbertson," Senator Norris said, "and talked with him about the charges, and as Culbertson was about to leave his office and with the adverse report lying on his desk, the president again asked Coolidge if he could not delay the sugar report."

Senator Smoot, said the Nebraska senator, called Culbertson into a conference with representatives of the sugar interests who were fighting against any reduction of the tariff. Senator Phipps, Republican, Colorado, and about fifteen members of the house were present, he said.

Replying, Senator Smoot declared that "nothing was said or done that I would not have the whole world know." He had called Culbertson in, Senator Smoot said, because the sugar men thought they should have a further hearing before the commission, and he knew Culbertson would do what he thought right and proper.

Senator Norris also declared that while the commission was deadlocked, three to three, on the sugar case, Culbertson was offered a transfer to the trade commission with an increased salary. He presented a memorandum which he said was prepared by Culbertson, describing the conference, and saying it was the view of those present that the commission's investigation had been based on a wrong

Secretary Wilbur says the department has plans for the immediate expansion of its training program because there is a shortage of naval aviators. Additional funds will be required for this intensive campaign by the department and it will be necessary to include them in one of the forthcoming deficiency bills, because the plans were not completed in time to have them included in the budget.

The secretary's plan is to send the graduating class of 1926 in groups to both San Diego and to Hampton Roads, where they will be given individually about twenty-five hours of flight instruction, including a total of ten hours of dual instruction as pilots. Plans are also on foot for developing enlisted pilots in the navy and congress is considering a plan to create the rank of "ensign pilot," with the pay of an ensign.

FIRST "HANGMAN" TO USE ELECTRIC CHAIR DIES IN N. Y.

Hornell, N. Y.—The world's oldest executioner, William Christopher Patterson, who led one woman and fifty-three men, including Leon Czolgosz, murderer of President McKinley, to their deaths in Auburn prison, is dead. Patterson, who was 84 years old, was the first executioner to make use of the electric chair. He also executed the first woman to die in the chair, Mary Farmer. He kept a record of the executions by carving the victims' names on his cane, which he always carried. He was executioner at Auburn for thirty years.

Coloradoans Form Fascist League
Pueblo, Col.—A group of fifty leading Italians here have organized the League of the Fascists, said to be a branch of Mussolini's Italian fascists. The principles of the organization are reported to be similar to the Italian order.

9 Million Slash on Aircraft Bill

House Approves Section of Navy
Department Bill Providing for a Reduction by 4,000 Men of Present
Military Strength.

Washington.—The house eliminated from the Navy department appropriation bill approximately $9,000,000 of the amount carried for new aircraft construction.

Chairman Butler of the naval committee led the fight against the appropriation on the ground that the expenditure had not been authorized by his committee, which, under the house rules, has original jurisdiction in such matters. The section will be subject to another vote when the bill as a whole reaches the stage of final passage.

The house rejected by a vote of 95 to 66, a point of order by Butler to eliminate $300,000 carried for the Navy department to contract for experiment work in an all-metal dirigible. He then offered an amendment to strike this section from the bill, but the house adjourned without taking action on this proposal.

The house approved a section of the Navy department bill providing for a reduction of 4,000 men of the navy's present authorized enlisted strength of 86,000 men.

Although the proposal was attacked by Representative Britten, Republican, Illinois, on the ground it would reduce the fighting strength of the navy, no amendment was offered.

Washington.—Material opposition has developed in the house naval committee to the recommendation of the president's air board to create an additional secretary of the Navy department to handle aviation.

A number of committee members feel that there is no need for more civilians in high positions in the naval establishment.

A bill has been introduced in the senate to carry out the recommendations for a new assistant secretary, but no measure to this effect has been presented in the house, although Chairman Butler of the committee introduced bills to carry out others of the board's proposals.

It is indicated that Representative Vinson of Georgia, ranking Democrat on the committee, and also a member of the air board, will sponsor a bill to create the new assistant secretaryship.

NAVY FLIERS TO BE TRAINED AT SAN DIEGO

Washington.—The Navy department proposes to centralize its training of young midshipmen in the art of flying at San Diego and Hampton Roads naval training stations, according to a statement made by Secretary Wilbur recently to a congressional committee.

method of computing production costs. In July, 1924, Senator Norris said, Culbertson was called to the White House and asked by Secretary Slep to see if he wanted a diplomatic post. Several posts were discussed and finally Culbertson was appointed minister to Rumania, a post he now holds.

"The effect of that was to take a great influence off the tariff commission by getting him out of the country," interjected Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

SACRAMENTO MAN OWNS 175 MARYLAND PAPER MONEY

Sacramento.—Paper money dating to Revolutionary days is a rarity, but R. W. Hickok of 1413 Nineteenth street is the possessor of several such relics issued in 1775 by the provincial government of Maryland.

The face values are one and one-third dollars, one-sixth, one-third and two-thirds of a dollar.

An inscription appears on all the bills as follows:

"This bill entitles the bearer hereof to receive in gold or silver at the rate of four shillings and six pence sterling per dollar for the paid bill, according to a resolution of the Provincial Convention of Maryland, held at the city of Annapolis, the seventh day of December, 1775."

Shipping at Miami Paralyzed

Miami, Fla.—Forty-three ships, including twelve steamers and thirty-three sailing vessels, were tied up at Miami unable to unload. The harbor has been tightly bottled since the capsizing of the barkentine Prins Valdemar in the entrance on January 10. Estimates place the loss to shipping above $2,000,000.

A WORD FROM FRIENDS IN PERSIA

American Hospital,
Teheren, Persia.
Dear friends:

After a week in East Persia, we already find it a struggle to get time for correspondence hence we will write a few lines before we get too busy lest our holiday greetings reach you next year. After pleasant and cordial farewells from you all including the Board staff in New York, we left the Brooklyn pier of the Fabre line Friday afternoon, Oct. 9, 1925. It was trying to rain there when we got on the Sinaia, and trying to snow when we stopped at Providence, R. I. the next morning for the rest of our passengers and cargo. Three outgoing missionaries of the American Board, one of the Mennonite society, a few other Americans, and several Syrians welcomed us cordially, and association with them added to the enjoyment of the trip. About a couple of days out we entered the Gulf Stream, thawed out, and recovered from our mal-de-mer.

Stops and brief shore trips at three Azorean ports, Lisbon, Piraeus—Athens, Salonika, Constantinople on the Black Sea, and Jaffa-Jerusalem kept a rather slow rambling trip from becoming monotonous. About the first of November we began to hear rumors and very fragmentary reports of the recent trouble in Syria, and speculations about travel from Beirut gave us something else to keep interested in. You who got your morning papers regularly for the last two months probably know about as much of the Damascus incident as we picked up in two days at Beirut. We reached that city late in the day, Nov. 9, and found quiet, so far as we could see, as an American city. Cannonading at day break the second day in Beirut woke and startled us until we recalled the date, Nov. 11, and recognized the firing as a salute in honor of armistice day from two American destroyers in the harbor.

We met Mr. Erdman and a few other members of the Station Staff in Beirut, who showed us every courtesy and wished us God-Speed. We booked our passage with the Eastern Transport Company. In the same Dodge car the Edwards family rode. Mr. Edwards was in Army Y. M. C. A. work in Iraq (Mesopotamia, Near East Relief in Iraq and Persia, short term teaching in the Mission Boys' school here in Teheran before finishing his missionary course. He and Mrs. Edwards and the baby are now missionaries in Mosul, Iraq. You can imagine how interesting we found the desert trip with such a fund of local information coupled with such cordial dispositions in the same car for three and a half days to Bagdad. The desert trip, which now detours around Damascus was uneventful except for the overturning of one of the baggage cars in a mud hole between Palmyra and Quebeissa. Total damage was one fender, one bent axle, one whole-somely frightened driver, and a little tear in a satchel or two.

We spent Sunday and Monday, Nov. 15 and 16 in the storied city of Bagdad, and for the first time since Oct. 4 at Blackwell had an opportunity to attend public worship. Rev. Roger Cumberland had anticipated our coming, made hotel reservations for us, helped us avoid being skinned on our exchange, showed us about the city on a few necessary errands, and generally acted the part of the big brother missionary. The missionary families, the Stoudits and Thoms' also welcomed us quite cordially. In Bagdad we heard great stories of the activities of the bandits between the Iraq frontier and Kermanshah in Persia. However, by the time we got to the "danger zone" we found the whole

JANUARY BIRTHDAY PARTY

The January birds met for their annual conclave Saturday afternoon, Jan. 23rd, at the home of Mrs. Harry Williams. Judging from the chirping that was heard we would say that they were busy exchanging sincere birthday greetings, telling jokes and stories and having a pleasant time generally.

A few members could not be present because of illness or having flown too far away to return for the day, but remembered the trysting and sent chirps.

Misses Marion Banaban and Florence Williams scattered among the flock sumptuous crumbs, consisting of delicious fruit salad, sandwiches, coffee, fruit cake, individual birthday cakes, coffee, nuts and glace fruits.

The color scheme was yellow and green, which was very cheerful and happy—emblematic of the spring days that will follow the January cold. The decorations were freesias and ferns.

As the shadows began to fall, the birds winged their way to the home nests, after having planned to meet next year with Mrs. J. J. Pardie.

CHEROKEES HOSTS TO CAMP FIRES

Saturday evening, January 23, the Cherokee group of Camp Fire girls acted as hostess to the other Camp Fire groups of Campbell. The affair was held in the Community hall, of the new Campbell Library which had been beautifully decorated in woody greens for the occasion.

A demonstration council fire was part of the program, after the beautiful candle lighting ceremony a short talk on the ideals of Camp Fire by the group President Ruth Newton, this was followed by a talk on gown decoration by Philoma Goldsworthy. Mrs. Shelley explained the Wobelo court and the necessity for having one.

Delicious refreshments were served and this was followed by a real jolly up of games and songs.

The groups present as guests of the Cherokee group were the High School group led by Miss Ruby Howes, the Moreland group led by Mrs. J. M. Ray and Mrs. Peach and the Campbell Grammar school group led by Miss Ruth Henderson and Miss Hostettler. Miss Mariam Jenkins and Kitty Johnson are the leaders of the Cherokee group.

The mothers assisting at this affair were: Mrs. Alison, Blaine, Jacquot, Legrand, Lenox, Maxon, W. I. Merrill, E. C. Merrill, Stray, Rice, Townsend, Vogt, Miss Edith Titcomb, Philoma Goldsworthy and the County Executive Mrs. Louis Shelley were also present.

About fifty girls were present at this affair and every one had such a happy time that many were the wishes that it could be repeated soon.

The past month in Greenville, Plumas county, and the surrounding country has been one of almost continuous sunshine and unusual warmth for their season of the year. On several mornings the mercury dropped to 14 above zero with a rise up to 45 and 55 during the middle of the day. Last year at this time many mornings were at zero and a heavy ice crop was harvested, whereas this year the ice crop is far below normal, it being necessary to flood shady ponds in order to freeze.

The Oakdale irrigation district, at Oakdale, Stanislaus county, is in splendid financial condition, according to reports submitted at the monthly meeting of the directors. Treasurer Maxwell reported balances in the various funds on January 2, as follows: Bond, $64,569.88; general, $16,062.72; construction, $13,834.45, and Melones dam, $784,329.71. There was paid out during the month, Oakdale's share of dam construction, the sum of $59,329.71.

He also exhibited a chart of the rain fall up to this date for many years past showing the least rain for this year. Messrs Clendenning, Hedegard and Couk talked on water conservation and cooperation.

On motion the following committee was appointed on water conservation: Messrs Hedegard, Barnes, Couk, Clendenning and Hagen.

CAGERS DEFEAT SANTA CLARA HIGH 24-19.

Tuesday afternoon the Campbell unlimited met and vanquished the Santa Clara team 24-19 on the local court "Breck" Reed, captain of the Campbell team, was high point man of the game annexing five field goals and one foul shot for a total of eleven points. This was a regular P. A. L. game and makes the sixth won by the locals. The team thus far has only suffered one defeat and hopes to avenge this when they meet Palo Alto a week from Friday. The 130 lb team was defeated by the Santa Clara lightweights in a close and hard fought game. If it had not been for their usual run of hard luck they would have won. The score was 18 to 15. Half time the score was 9 to 8 in favor of Campbell. Monte and Merrill starred for the locals.

Last Friday afternoon San Jose was defeated by the unlimited team in a slow game, the score being 22 to 14.

Next Friday night Campbell plays San Mateo at San Mateo.

BUDGETING YOUR LIFE'S WORK

The Kiwanis Clubs have taken up an interesting phase of community service. Besides the idea of making and following a budget of business and household expenditures, there is being promulgated the plan of "budgeting one's life work." So much time for business, so much time and attention to the home and family, and a certain portion of one's effort for his community, are among the listings of the life-budget system.

This all sounds good, and it might work. It would be a good thing for humanity if it could be generally practiced. There is one stickler to the whole scheme which ought not, but probably will, prevent its adoption by any considerable number of people. Many people resent the idea of expert or mathematical calculation of life. To them, the plan is mechanical, and would appear to destroy the cherished right of determining their conduct to meet changing conditions. Again, the budget probably would be much like New Year resolutions: it wouldn't be carried out. The fact is, every normal person already budgets his time and abilities in certain directions; and, budget-making or not, he likely would soon fall back into the old ways. Nevertheless, it is a good thought, and all hail to Kiwanis or any other force that sets the people thinking along the best lines of life's economies.

INTEREST IN ADVERTISING

Advertising is the romance of business. Display to attract interest to hold the attention, sense to appeal to the quality of judgment—all these and more are the reasons that advertising is the great force in business that it is. In the old days it was thought that all that was necessary was to display the ad so that the reader "couldn't help seeing it." This is good as far as it goes, but a pile of bricks in the road might bring the same result. What the public wants is some use for the bricks. More people are reading advertisements now than ever before in the history of business, because ad-copy is advancing in quality and interest the same as news, editorials and features. But it does not take a genius to write good advertising copy. Any intelligent business man or his neighbor's daughter can "put the right stuff into it" by continuous effort at satisfying the legitimate needs of buyers. Truth, crushed into advertising, will rise into profits.

MODEL HOMES

We read in one of the lumber journals that the building material makers are going to spend $8,000,000 in 1926 on the construction of model homes in 28 important cities. Their idea is to give the people an object lesson of good architecture, proper construction, and sound investment.

Many costly homes put up years ago could be compared to an overdressed and noisy woman. They flaunted their florid ornaments at you, until you longed for some simple dwelling whose plain face suggested repose and dignity. One would say the owners had more money than education.

Today the new homes are not so gaudy, and they look more like real homes. Many of them, however are not well built. While many of the houses built 100 years ago are still in excellent condition, some of the modern ones may not last a third of that time. If they go to pieces so soon, a heavy charge must be added annually for deterioration.

The people of Campbell who plan to erect homes this spring and summer, would do well to obtain information as to the elements that constitute a model home. And our several merchants in the town whose business it is to supply the needed material can be relied on for honest goods as well as for honest advice. Substantial construction reduces depreciation charges, and an artistic plan produces a charming home to which its possessors become deeply attached, but which if necessary can be sold for a high price.

A WELL MANAGED UTILITY

Pacific Gas and Electric, one of the big California utilities, is offering $2,500,000 preferred stock to yield 6.13%. The company had 801,391 customers on its books, October 31, a gain of 624,576 in 18 years. The gross business in 1907 was $11,342,000; for the year ending with October, 1925, it was 47,773,000. Within past 5 years company has invested over $105,000,000 in additional properties to carry on its business.

A LITTLE ESSAY ON KNOCKS

You may knock, you may shatter (your home town) if you will;
But the live, loyal boosters will cling to it still.

Completing the Good-Bye

LAST week I began to say good-bye, and this week I'll complete the job. This time it will be a little talk of appreciation.

Every demonstrator and every salesman that ever visited this store and expressed an opinion on the subject has said emphatically, "What wonderfully fine people trade here." Or else, "I never have met so many nice customers."

So if I've come to believe that no store in the land was ever patronized by a more excellent company of people, it's because good authorities have had that opinion too. That's why it hurts so like Sam Hill to give them up.

The best wish I can leave for you, folks, is that the next few years you favor with your trade will appreciate you as much as I do.

Rev. F. C. Farr will sing a Solo.

You want to hear this. Do not forget the date.

Grocerymen certainly have their nerve demanding payment for such mere commodities as sugar, flour, and potatoes, when we have such great need of gas, oil, air, water, tires, tubes, sparkplugs, lampbulbs, crankcase service and accessories.

"I heard your son was an undertaker. I thought you said he was a physician."

"Not at all, I just said he followed the medical profession."—Selected.

Gigantic Carpets

Girls in Donegal, Ireland, have just manufactured two carpets for one of the city companies of London. One of them measures 49 feet by 22 feet, is seamless and weighs a ton. The weaving entailed the tying of 4,250,000 knots. Fifteen men are required to lift the carpet into which is woven the company's arms and the motto, "Give Thanks to God." This local village industry enjoys a high reputation and its products are sold at high price.

FROM PERSIA

road patrolled by pairs of Persian soldiers armed to the teeth, and probably as safe as Broadway, N. Y., or Market Street, S. F. We also heard about the deposition of the Shah of Persia, and the dictatorship of Reza Kahn, but this also was more exciting at a distance than in the capital city, for the Shah was in France at the time, and the "revolution" was entirely bloodless.

The first night out of Bagdad we slept on the train, European day coach to Khaniquin, near the border. We were surprised to find fair to good macadam road with well engineered grades over the mountains all the way from Khaniquin to the city of Teheran itself. At one place we hit a bump hard enough to send both of us and at another there was snow through the new top of the car, along the roadside. The first night in Persia we spent with Dr. Bussdicker and family, our medical missionary in Kermnashah; and the next with the Funks who are in the same status at Hamadan. It was good to be guests—really taken like home folks—in the American homes of our mission colleagues. The next evening Nov. 19, we reached our new home town, just six weeks from our arrival at New York enroute.

To do justice to the cordial hospitality of the station staff here and the way they have quickly made us one of the big family lengthen this letter unduly. We will only mention two, the Paynes who have taken us under their friendly roof while we are getting ready for house-keeping, and the McDowells who are our senior colleagues in the medical work, and who have made us at home in their home as well as in the hospital.

Of course you are all wondering about the language problem. Well every one is quite encouraging about it, and while the language committee is wrestling with the problem of finding a teacher equal to the task which our thick heads and stiff tongues present, we are pushing forward the setting up of our home in the rented house provided for the new doctor family, and breaking into the work and problems of dispensary and hospital. We are learning to enjoy the climate of an inland plateau 4000 feet above sea level had in sight of the eternal snows of Mt. Demavend which towers about 1500 feet above us to the northwest. The dry cold is far more invigorating than the foggy cool of San Francisco bay, while we are promised real summer weather a few months hence at a latitude of about 37 north.

To write our impressions of the people and the work of the mission would mean rewriting a lot in a few months. We will leave most of that to later letters. For the present, however, we are glad to be at last where we may have a small part in the great and going work of introducing Moslems to Christ. We would again bespeak your interest and prayers, and we render our thanks for them as in the past.

Yours on the Eastern front,
Dr. and Mrs. Edward Blain.

News of Interest to All

The school board at Davis, Yolo county, is expected to act at an early date on plans for the new $125,000 grammar school building. The bond issue for the building will be submitted some time in the spring. The present structures are overcrowded.

According to the building permits on file in the office of City Clerk Gladys Roberts of Petaluma, Sonoma county, during 1925 there were 69 new homes erected there, at a cost of $227,100. The highest priced residence cost $12,500 and the lowest $600.

Hygienic instruction in the schools of California is all but a failure, said Dr. Herbert S. Stolz, state director of physical education, after learning that only forty out of one thousand students wash their hands before entering a school cafeteria for lunch.

Twenty-nine men and women will this week seek to establish themselves as heirs of "Old Jimmy" Michael, hermit and mystery man, who was found dead near Porterville, Tulare county, in June, 1924, leaving an estate valued at more than $100,000.

Articles of incorporation of the Corning Olive Packers, Inc., of Corning, Tehama county, recently were filed with Secretary of State Frank C. Jordan. The organization has a capital stock of $50,000.

As a result of a meeting held in San Francisco recently by officials of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, definite steps are planned for suppression of salacious literature in the state.

Need for education in automobile safety laws among boys and girls now in the public schools as well as among adults was stressed in a communication filed with the state board of education by the California Public Safety committee, which represents 270,000 organized club women of the state.

A request for more employees to care for aged war veterans at the Yountville state veterans' home has been made by Russell C. Martin, commandant of the institution, in his annual report to the board of managers, which has placed the document in the hands of Governor Richardson.

Tennessee Lawyer Put Poetry in Deposition

Depositions in suits at law are usually dry reading. All the more welcome was the unexpected touch of poetry, or poetic sentiment, in the deposition of Frank P. Bond, now deceased, but formerly attorney for Lem Motlow in the Jack Daniel whisky theft case. Testifying as to the sale of the whisky, consummated in a St. Louis law office, Mr. Bond was asked as to the presence of Mrs. Imogene Remus, wife of the well-known bootlegger. He replied: "I saw her there—a very remarkable woman, with eyes as luminous as a Tennessee brook under a willow tree where trout stray."

It is evident that Tennessee produces something besides fundamentalists, when it can evolve a lawyer with such a sense of the beautiful and such a gift of expressing it. —St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Alleging that false and fraudulent representations had been made to them when they purchased the land, nineteen land owners in the Sutter basin district, Sutter county, filed with the county clerk damage suits aggregating $263,881.90 against the Sutter Basin company. The majority of the complaints of the landowners charge misrepresentations as to the condition of the soil, drinking water obtainable, drainage and assessment limit.

Constructive steps to stamp out high school fraternities, which flourish in some cities despite legal provisions against them, are being taken through establishment of junior service clubs in California secondary institutions, according to A. C. Olney, state commissioner of secondary schools. These student organizations, said Olney, are proving successful under supervision of Kiwanis clubs, Rotary clubs and similar civic associations.

Several bones, believed to be parts of a human body, were discovered in the smoldering ruins of the fire which destroyed the hay filled barn of Mrs. Jennie Read at Davis, Sacramento county. Discovery of the bones led authorities to reiterate their belief that eight or ten tramps, who made the barn their headquarters, may possibly have perished in the blaze.

SAFER, PERHAPS

"Why don't you get a car and chauffeur for these trips of yours—no work, no responsibility?" "Rather paddle my own canoe."

Worth-While Squashes

Squash may not grow to be very large in some parts of Ohio, but there are two farmers near Willard who are after the squash record, says the Toledo Blade. Charles Lillo came to town the other day and asked permission to put on display in the window of the Home Savings and Banking company a squash weighing five pounds. Permission was given. Several days later William Bliss, living at Steuben, asked one of the employees of the bank if he would come out and help him bring in a squash to be displayed beside that of Lillo. Believing that Bliss was making fun of the large squash the assistance was refused, but Bliss got the aid of a passerby and placed a squash weighing 125 pounds. Now Lillo is wondering whether he shall allow his little squash to remain on display.

Excellent Example

The town commissioner was paying his annual visit to the village school and was putting the children through their paces.

They did quite well until he asked them the meaning of the word "epidemic." Nobody knew, so he had to help them out.

"An epidemic is something that spreads. Now, can anybody give me an example of an epidemic?" There was a long silence.

"Can no one tell me?" asked the commissioner at last. "Remember, something that spreads." Then came a small voice: "Jam, sir."

Much Long Hair Worn

Despite civil war, one of China's exports, human hair, bids fair to increase this year. It is a noticeable fact that the most popular models and mannequins in New York are appearing before patrons with long hair. Many women who have had their locks shingled have found the style most trying to their features and are supplementing the shorn locks with transformations. Transformations of domestic hair are comparatively inexpensive but the imported articles are costly.

With a roar and a terrific concussion which shook the city of El Segundo, Los Angeles county, and territory for miles around, a 55,000-barrel tank of distillate exploded mysteriously at the Standard Oil company's plant near El Segundo, causing fatal injuries to one man and property damage estimated at nearly $200,000.

California's first joint junior college district is being formed in San Bernardino county under authority granted recently by the state board of education. The college will be supported by Colton and Bernardino municipal governments.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON HOW TO LEAVE AN ESTATE

"Do you know, Aunt," said Helen, as she accepted a cup of tea from Aunt Emmy, "I feel terribly sorry for Mrs. Strong."

"Yes," agreed Aunt Emmy. "It will be hard for her. She is such a dependent, helpless, little thing." "Oh, I don't mean that," interrupted Helen. "Her feelings are so hurt because, as she says, her husband publicly insulted her by not making her executrix and trustee of his estate."

"Good gracious, child, did she say that?" exclaimed Aunt Emmy, setting her cup down with a bang.

"Yes, she did, Aunt," said Helen, enjoying the sensation she had made and determined to make the most of it, "and I'm sure I agree with her. The idea of that old man appointing a trust company to look after Mrs. Strong's money. It isn't as though there wasn't plenty of it. The Strong's are the richest people in town, I guess."

"Well, for mercy's sake!" cried Aunt Emmy, disgust in every syllable, "if it don't beat all! You are as big a fool as she is then!"

"What do you mean, Aunt Emmy?" asked Helen with dignity. "I think it nothing short of disgraceful for a man to show that he has no confidence in his wife by putting his money in strangers' hands to be doled out to her as they see fit."

"You never thought that up, Helen," said Aunt Emmy, "that's Mrs. Strong. She always talks as though she was living in a story book, poor, silly, little thing."

Helen blushed and Aunt Emmy went on:—"Do you know what it means to administer an estate, especially a big one like Mr. Strong's?"

"Why, no," stammered Helen, "but it must be simple."

Aunt Emmy sniffed. "Simple! Let me tell you a little about it. When a man dies the things he owns cease for a time to be anybody's property and become his estate. The property passes from his control on his death naturally, and as his estate it is controlled and supervised by the Court which will be in charge of the estate for many months probably. First this Court finds out whether or not there is a will and if the will is valid. Then it must find out about the executor. If the will is properly drawn and valid, it will be 'admitted to probate.' The persons who witnessed it must be found and examined.

"The executor must satisfy the Court as to fitness and willingness to perform the many arduous duties involved. Perhaps he will have to furnish a bond, to assure the Court of his financial responsibility. He must assemble all the so-called assets, have them valued and file an inventory and appraisal of them with the Court. All the debts against the estate must be collected. The settlement of all claims against persons and corporations is a job no one without a thorough knowledge of business can undertake.

"In an estate like Mr. Strong's there is sure to be a certain amount of financial negotiation that demands banking knowledge. Then the executor must pay claims against the estate in the order of precedence laid down by law. Also you know state inheritance and federal estate taxes must be met promptly. Finally, after the estate is settled as to claims it has and claims against it, the executor must see that the various bequests are made."

"Oh, Aunt, don't tell me any more. I never thought that there were so many complicated things to be done. Poor Mrs. Strong never knew a thing about business."

"Mr. Strong knew that," remarked Aunt Emmy dryly, "and don't you suppose he had his children in mind, too? He wanted his estate handled so that the children and Mrs. Strong would be protected and assured of a good, comfortable living all their lives, with something to go on to the grandchildren. Even if Mrs. Strong were a business woman, no one could tell how long she would live to administer the estate. He knew that the trust company would not die, nor lose its faculties, nor be influenced by personal feeling so that it might be unjust to some one, and that it represents some of the best business and banking judgment in town."

"Well, I guess old man Strong knew what he was doing!" said Helen.—Anne B. Ayres.

The more recently adopted method of killing the common barberry which spreads black stem rust of small grains is by the use of such chemicals as salt and kerosene, according to the Department of Agriculture. These methods have several advantages over the digging method formerly used. They are less laborious, cheaper and more certain. This is especially true if bushes are growing in stony ground where digging is difficult. Department Circular 356 tells all about how to use this method.—Banker-Farmer.
